EIGHT HOUSES, NINE BARN AFIRE IN THE PAST THREE MONTHS

Loss Reported at Quarterly
Meeting of County
Firemen, $74,300

INSURANCE IS DISCUSSED

Two More Companies Affiliate
With the Bucks County
Organization

QUAKERTOWN, Sept. 9.—Two more fire companies became affiliated with the Bucks County Firemen's Association, when the county group met in quarterly session in Firemen's Hall, here, Saturday evening. Those newly joined are Trevoise Heights, and Springtown, the latter a newly formed company. Report was also made that a new fire company was formed Thursday at Erwinna, to be known as Delaware Valley Fire Company. It is believed that as this company grows it will be enabled to serve a section which has had to wait for firemen to travel several miles to fight fires. A number of former New York residents are making their homes in that section, and it is thought that sufficient support will be received.

James E. Groome, Yardley, president of the association, presided. He introduced Burgess Smith, of this borough, who warmly welcomed the men. The Rev. Stout, of Quakertown, made the opening prayer; and the chaplain of the association, the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, Eddington, offered the closing prayer.

Over 300 firemen were in attendance to hear reports of all the officers. County fire marshal William L. Stackhouse gave his report for the quarter, which showed a total of 26 alarms, loss of $74,300, insurance of $51,900. One death was due to fire, a child, Mary Gross, being suffocated in bed when a house was destroyed at Sellersville. Nine barns were burned during the quarter, two of these being struck by lightning. The total of houses afire was eight, this being a high percentage for houses in that period according to Mr. Stackhouse. "All of the house fires but one, showed that the fire origin was from stoves, or careless handling of gasoline or oil." The fire marshal stressed the seriousness of using gasoline or oil near a fire or in building a fire.

Lengthy discussion was given by the fire-fighters to various fires which had occurred recently. These included the Gross fire at Sellersville where a death resulted; the Sames fire at Richlandtown; and the fire at Woodbourne on Saturday morning where a mother and two sons were severely burned. The Sames fire was discussed at length by the gathering. About 10 years ago a barn on the property was destroyed. Shortly after firemen from Richlandtown canvassed the section, and encouraged the building of dams for protection in case of fire. Mr. Sames had a dam erected on his property three years ago, and during a fire recently water from the said dam was used with great effect. The barn was saved, as well as all out-buildings with the exception of a small one. The fire originated from a tractor. The value of dams on farm lands or other properties where possible, was impressed on all present. The fire at Woodbourne Saturday, it was shown, was due to carelessness, gasoline being used to build a fire in the kitchen range.

Another discussion Saturday evening was regarding compensation insurance for firemen, which matter has been talked over at several recent meetings. In townships and boroughs of the second class, it was brought out, the compensation insurance does not protect firemen who travel to fires in their own cars, but only those riding on fire-fighting apparatus. The firemen were of the opinion that too much money is expended for protection received, as over one-half of the firemen use their own cars, or ride with neighbors. The insurance is carried by township supervisors and borough councils, it being compulsory. The matter is to be taken up with the state firemen's association, the committee appointed several months ago to investigate such being headed by Moses Coyle, Pt. Pleasant.

Short talks upon matters of interest to firemen were given by Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; and Clarence Benner, Quakertown, a county commissioner.

The session adjourned to meet in Newtown in December.

A lunch was served on the lower floor of the hall by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the county organization. At the meeting of the latter group, about 75 were present.

For Republican Nomination
CORONER
Bucks County

Dr. H. Clayton Moyer, candidate for the Republican nomination for Coroner, resides at Blooming Glen, and was born on a farm near Silverdale, Bucks County, on March 2, 1887. He was graduated from what is now the Silverdale Grammar School in 1903 and the West Chester State Normal School in 1906 and from the University of Pennsylvania, School of Veterinary Medicine and Surgery, in 1912.

Dr. Moyer has been Justice of the Peace in Hilltown Township for ten years. Early in life he took an active interest in educational work and in recognition of his scholastic worth was elected principal of the Newville High School, resigning after three years of service to enter the University of Pennsylvania. He has a wide acquaintance and a host of friends throughout the county who value Dr. Moyer, principally because of his unswerving integrity in business and professional affairs. Dr. Moyer has been the Republican Committeeman in his district for many years.

Because of this recognized high trait of character, together with his splendid qualifications, and the fact the community in which he lives was both entitled and advantageous for representation on the Republican ticket led to the endorsement of his candidacy by the Republican Harmony Primary Campaign Committee, who believed Dr. Moyer would render an able, alert and efficient administration of the office of Coroner.

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 9.—A half day's outing to the National Farm School here, was participated in Saturday afternoon by members of Bucks County Natural Science Association.

Fall Proves Fatal To Fallsington Man

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 9.—Injuries received when he fell from a doorstep Saturday afternoon proved fatal yesterday morning to Wallace Loveless, 60 years old, of Fallsington. He died at a Trenton hospital shortly before 5 a. m., death being due to a fractured skull.

According to police, Loveless went into the place of Harry Berkowitz, 611 South Warren street. As Loveless was leaving the place, police report, he turned to talk to Mrs. Kerkowitz, lost his footing, and fell. His head struck the sidewalk and he was rendered unconscious, despite efforts of Ellsworth Dennis, of 164 Bloomsbury street, to prevent him from falling.

An ambulance in charge of Reserve Policeman Smyth and Chauffeur Zelle was sent to the scene and Loveless was rushed to the hospital.

Captain Blauth, Sergeant Bentley and Patrolman Tonne went to the place to investigate. Coroner Carl H. Whitney had the body of Loveless removed to Hartmann's morgue, where County Physician Charles H. Mitchell held an autopsy. The coroner is trying to locate relatives of the dead man. Loveless is said to have lived alone.

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION DEMANDS SOME ACTION

Want Canal Project To Be Started As Was Promised

QUESTION THE DELAY

A special meeting of the directors of the Delaware Valley Protective Association was called by the President, Edward A. Briggs, of Newtown, in Phillips Mill, New Hope, on Thursday evening, September 5th, to take action on the continued delay at Harrisburg in pushing the Work Relief Project whereby the Delaware Canal may be repaired on Federal funds.

There is a wide-spread dissatisfaction with the fact that the Department of Forests and Waters, which agreed last spring to sponsor an application for Federal funds for the canal, has remained inactive in the matter, or at least has failed to give out any information as to progress made. Telegraphic and written inquiries from the association have met with no response, or else with the evasive statement that the Department wishes to strengthen the legal status of the canal before going further. This attitude is in direct contrast to the point of view taken by the Department last May 27th, when it sent a representative to Washington, together with a representative of the Delaware Valley Protective Association, and there presented to Mr. Roosevelt's Allotment Committee the first draft of the application for the canal funds.

Very recently members of the allotment committee at Washington have contacted the Association in Bucks County, asking why the project is not being pushed, and urging that all possible pressure be brought to bear on the situation within the State. Accordingly the officers of the Association have instituted a search into the State records, but as yet have unearthed no

CLERK ORPHANS' COURT
Bucks County

There are almost as many women voters as men voters in Bucks County and the Republican party has been the first to recognize the right of the women for one of their sex to seek one of the major county offices.

Miss Eleanor D. Worthington, of Hartsville, in response to the urging of her many friends throughout Bucks County, is seeking the Republican nomination for Clerk of Orphans' Court.

Miss Worthington, a woman of superior ability, was born in the house in which she lives in Hartsville, and is a graduate of Walnut Lane School, Germantown. She has always taken a progressive part in civic affairs and has made an enviable record for doing things for her community. That her willingness to work and her ability to accomplish things were recognized, is evidenced in the fact that she served "The Neighbors," a live-wire civic organization, as secretary for five years and as president for four years.

She is Assistant Secretary of the Bucks County Republican Committee; Vice-President of the Middle District Republican Association, and has represented Warwick Township as Republican Committeewoman since 1920. She is also serving her second term as township auditor.

A woman of her marked attainments and outstanding intelligence cannot do otherwise than make the office of Clerk of Orphans' Court a very useful and upstanding one to the bar, the general public and the community at large.

Miss Worthington received the unanimous endorsement of the Republican Harmony Primary Campaign Committee, and is being supported by all elements of the party.

Driver Mis-Judges Distance As
He Turns Onto Penn
Valley Structure

TRUCK WAS DAMAGED

A truck driver had a narrow escape from serious injury this morning, when the large truck he was driving struck the side of the canal bridge at Penn Valley and partly turned over.

The truck is owned by the Cohen Trucking Corporation and was en route to New York, heavily loaded with miscellaneous cargo. The driver in making the turn onto the bridge, going east, misjudged his distance. The west side of the bridge was struck and the side of the body of the truck was considerably damaged.

The accident occurred at 3 o'clock and traffic was impeded for several hours.

This is the same location at which a number of accidents have taken place and at which a number of fatalities have occurred.

Bodice Catalanotti, Bristol, was arrested and fined for reckless driving Saturday night at Pond and Dorrance streets. Catalanotti was fined $10 and costs by Justice of Peace, James Guy.

Six persons were injured last night in a head-on collision of automobiles at the intersection of Knight-Dunks Ferry Road in Bensalem Township. Their daughter, Stella, 20, was cut about the face and body, and a son, Stanley, 12, received a broken rib. All were taken to Frankford Hospital. All were in a car operated by Waddas.

Walter Dadura, of Marlton, N. J., driver of the other machine, escaped injury. Frank Kipper, of Marlton, a passenger in the car, received injuries to his face when thrown from the machine. His brother, Walter, received a dislocated shoulder. Both were treated by Highway Patrolman Diem.

The two drivers will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Rigby on reckless driving charges.

Schmidt and Kallenbach Wedding Occurs Here

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Kallenbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kallenbach, Fairview Lane, and Herman E. Schmidt, Maple Beach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schmidt, Camden, N. J., was performed at four p. m., Saturday, at St. Mark's rectory. The Rev. E. Paul Baird, assistant pastor of the parish, performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a cream-colored chiffon velvet frock, made floor length. The neck was round and a deeply shirred cape fell to the waistline. The model was made on bias lines and was slenderizing. Mrs. Schmidt wore a turban of the material with tulle trim, elbow length white kid gloves and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and valley lilies. Janet Gaynor Plays Great Role in Absorbing Story

Filmgoers who have been looking for the superlative romance, those who seek drama, and those who prefer adventure will find all these elements combined in the simple, human story, "The Farmer Takes a Wife," which opens at the Grand Theatre tonight for two nights.

The picture stars Janet Gaynor in one of the most absorbing and tender love stories it has been her privilege to play; it exhibits for the first time the superior talents of the screen's new romantic sensation, Henry Fonda.

"The Farmer Takes a Wife" deals with the turbulent glamour and vitality of the Erie Canal scene in the early 1850's, and draws its dramatic conflict from the love of a boy fresh from the farmlands for a girl who was attached to the water life.

Fonda is the boy who takes to the canals to earn enough to buy his own farm. The life of the canal throws him into contact with Janet Gaynor, cook for canal boatman Charles Bickford, and although he recognizes their intrinsic differences, Fonda cannot help falling in love with her. She returns his love.

OVER 500 GATHER FOR FRIENDS' JOINT MEETING

Orthodox and Hicksite Groups
Have First Worship Meeting
Together After 108 Years

NUMBER OF SPEAKERS

FALLSINGTON, Sept. 9.—Giving outward expression to the feeling of amity which exists between the two groups, members of the Hicksite and Orthodox groups of Friends met in a joint meeting for worship, Saturday, after a separation of 108 years.

All lines of division were obliterated Saturday afternoon when at 2 o'clock the meeting was opened by Miss Jane Rushmore, clerk of the Representative Committee, of the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting of Friends (Race street branch), who gave a religious address; with members of both the Hicksite and Orthodox groups following with short addresses.

Between 500 and 600 assembled in the South building (Hicksite) for the joint session, with the separate business meetings following. The program of the day also called for a supper on the lawn of the meeting houses, with an evening meeting following.

As expressed by one of the speakers, those attending realized that "It is more important to be friendly with our neighbors than to be so concerned with matters overseas." Friends of both groups mingled after the sessions, and conversed as to what the future might hold, many being of the belief that in due time all business lines might likewise be obliterated, and the two groups operated as one meeting.

Speakers following Miss Rushmore were: Evan T. Worthington, representing the Race street branch; James Moon, Morrisville, and Max Reich, both of whom are affiliated with the

CONGREGATION HERE REOPENS SYNAGOGUE AFTER RENOVATIONS

Ten Commandments Replaced
Upon the Altar With Impressive Ceremonies

MANY ATTEND SERVICES

Stirring Addresses Pleaded For Unity and Harmony in Religious Work

The Ten Commandments of the Ahvath Achim congregation were replaced upon the altar of the renovated synagogue yesterday afternoon with impressive ceremonies.

There was a large gathering of members of the congregation, as well as many friends, who assembled at the synagogue on Pond street.

The members and guests assembled at the residence of Morris Cohen, Mill street, where the Commandments have been cared for during the renovation and at 5.30 marched to the synagogue.

Mr. Uhr, of Philadelphia, carried the Commandments and David Corn, Philadelphia, carried the key to the synagogue.

Upon the arrival of the assemblage at the synagogue Mr. Corn opened the door and the group marched into the renovated house of worship. The Commandments were placed upon the altar as Cantor H. Smigel, with his choir from the Beth Juda Synagogue, 11th and Ludlow streets, Philadelphia, sang "Open the Gates." Goldberg's orchestra, Philadelphia, accompanied the cantor and his choir.

Benjamin Silber was master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers, first presenting Rabbi Kaplander of Beth Juda Synagogue, Philadelphia.

Rabbi Kaplander gave a most instructive and interesting talk in which he pleaded for harmony and peace and urged the members of the Ahvath Achim congregation to work together for the advancement of their organization. He pleaded for peace between both Gentile and Jew in their religious work.

Other speakers were Burgess Clifford L. Anderson, Joseph R. Grundy, Warren P. Snyder, Thomas Scott and Louis Dries.

The Star-Spangled Banner and the Jewish hymn "Hatikva" were sung during the early part of the ceremonies and Dr. Max Siegel, president of the congregation, addressed the members. Dr. Siegel urged the membership to work together in harmony and he said that it was his aim during his occupancy of the office of president, to see all members of the Jewish race in Bristol and vicinity united in the congregation of Ahvath Achim.

The synagogue was organized in 1918 and during the past few months extensive alterations have been made to the building. The place of worship is much more attractive now and a decided improvement to the community.

The ceremonies yesterday were particularly impressive and solemn in their character.

MORE THAN VALIDITY

Constitutionality of the AAA and the TVA should be judicially determined in the next few months. That is a reasonable expectation now that the government in one suit and the Alabama Power Co. in another have brought the cases to the supreme court. But it should not be assumed that the decisions will bar further litigation. The situation is beclouded by the amendments just passed to both acts.

These suits are merely the forerunners of a flock of others that will be moving toward the supreme court to test new deal devices put through in the last few months. In the process attention, naturally, will be centered on the constitutionality phase, but sight should not be lost of the political and economic principles involved.

The Roosevelt philosophy is centralized federation. We already have proof enough that there is no telling where government control, once established, will stop. Regulation of the potato crop, for example, is the result of the weird circumstance created by corn and cotton regulation. Land formerly planted to these is now being used to raise potatoes and so the regular producer of the latter commodity, fearing the effect upon his livelihood, seeks government protection by the same instrument. The purpose to spike the other fellows is plain from the provision that if you didn't grow spuds last year, you can't grow them this year. The vigorous protest from some potato growers to the late halter put about their necks is, however, a healthy sign.

As with potatoes, so with coal, only in reverse form. For when the Guffey bill, now a law, was before the senate an attempt was made to slip in an amendment to levy a special tax on the oil producer. Why? To offset the advantage that will accrue to oil through the rise in price that the Guffey law will put upon soft coal. The amendment was beaten, but it will appear again.

So with the rest of the new deal program. One step forces another, and each entwines us in more red tape regulation. That isn't the worst of it. All the time bureaucracy, with its devastating effects, is being expanded. That is the real menace. Concluding it is not the court's, but the people's, job.

IRVIN ISN'T WILL

Irvin S. Cobb, who tries to be funny and has the looks, is engaged in an effort to write a daily paragraph on what he thinks of things but gives evidence of being a poor imitation of Will Rogers. And the newspapers are not biting.

In trying to fill Will's shoes without the appearance of imitation, Irvin makes his daily stint longer, with the result that it is about as interesting as an old woman's garrulity. Irvin admits he knows he will be accused of trying to fill Will's shoes, but adds, "What greater ambition could any writing man have?"

That's easy. Be yourself, Irvin. That's how Will done it.

Concerning the new deal war-cry, "You can't eat the constitution," a reader suggests you also can't eat the wheat which was plowed under, or the pigs which were never born.

Far-sighted operators of side-shows, museums and congresses of freaks have scouts out now, catching a rich man.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Mar. 5, 1874. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The Committee having in charge the task of organizing a Water Company and soliciting subscriptions for the same do not let these matters drop, though thus far it has been uphill work. A meeting of the Committee was held last Friday evening at No. 46 Mill street, at which it was decided to take suitable steps for the immediate organization of the Company. Mr. F. B. Gikison was selected as counsel to take the matter in charge. A sub-committee of three, viz: Jesse B. Mears, J. Wesley Wright and A. F. Young, were named to prepare a Constitution.

A fire occurred on Tuesday morning in the house of Mr. Sym. Brooks, on Otter street, the cause of which was a hole in the stove pipe. The fire was extinguished with some difficulty, but the services of the engine were not called into requisition.

The Hulmeville "Beacon" says that while Joshua H. Tomlinson was sleeping in his chair a few evenings since, his false teeth became detached, lodged in his throat nearly strangling him, and had it not been for the timely aid of Dr. A. Winder might have resulted seriously.

Charles Kirk, an elderly person residing in Warmaster Township, while driving along the road a short time since, when his horse became unmanageable and he was thrown from the carriage. He had one of his eyes seriously injured and one of his lower limbs.

On Tuesday afternoon a man at Friends, held on the 27th ult., a Com-tempted to jump on a train of cars while they were moving off from the depot, but missed his hold and was caught between the car and a telegraph pole, which stood close beside the track. He was pretty badly squeezed, but we understand that no fatal result is likely to follow.

At the regular annual meeting of the Washington Loan and Building Association of Newportville, held last evening, the following persons were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, Fr. Staake; vice-president, C. Lindhurst; treasurer, James Rue; secretary, H. F. Staake; directors, Jos. Wick, C. C. Brown, Philip Betz, G. Staake, George G. Rose, C. Markley, D. FAINTING BURGLAR

TOLEDO, O. — (INS) — When five uniformed policeman and a detective rushed into a laundry at night in response to a report that the place was being robbed, the sight proved too much for the 27-year-old burglar suspect. He fainted. Revived, he was taken to the police station, where he told police he "needed a shirt."

FISHSKIN BOOKS

BERLIN — (INS) — Goethe's works in fish skin form the latest attraction on the German book market. Eel "leather" is preferred on account of its high elasticity. Germans started binding books in fish leather during the world war when regular leather was short. Since then they perfected the new material and are surprising booksellers with complete editions of the German master pieces of literature in fish skin.

"CAST INTO EDEN"

BY HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young naval architect, and a beautiful society girl, named Linda, land on a strange island in the Caribbean after having fled from a quarantined yacht. Their ship is mysteriously set adrift and their clothes stolen, yet there is no other sign of a living human at first. Intermittently, however, blood-curdling cries come from the jungle. The mystery deepens with the finding of a well-kept though deserted plantation. They take refuge in a small house there. That night, Linda's slip is torn off her by some unseen creature and again the eerie scream is heard. Linda, frightened, insists that Jerome stay near her. The mystery of the night prowlers and stolen clothing clears with the appearance of a mother and father gorilla and their cub, and still another hairy monster decked out in Jerome's shirt. Jerome recites poetry and feeds the animals sugar-water to keep them from getting vicious. The dislike which Linda and Jerome had for one another changes to admiration for each other's courage in the face of real danger. Exploring the grounds, they discover a strange tree, full of luscious fruit, attached to the trunk of which is a sign reading in Spanish: "Any person landing here is forbidden to touch the fruit of this tree under penalty of punishment the most severe. El Dueno."

CHAPTER XVII

Jerome went on: "This tree is the only thing the Dueno has bothered to post. There's a pretty vigorous threat in the way he's worded it. He doesn't say, 'Will be prosecuted by the law' but hands it out straight, 'Severely punished,—literally, terribly punished.'"

An idea seized her. "Maybe it's deadly poison."

"Let's say that it is. You can't go ramming through a jungle eating what looks pretty."

But both knew in their hearts that there was no such danger. On the contrary there was to this fruit a sort of beneficent promise as of something not only delicious and refreshing and exquisite of flavor, but a tonic, wholesome, strength bestowing quality like a luscious melon in an arid, stifling desert.

Linda advanced another argument: "He's gone off and left it just as it is ripening. Wouldn't it be better to gather it and put it in a cool place?"

"It would be better to leave it alone entirely," Jerome said sternly. Though Linda disregarded the curious analogy to the earliest historical record of the first human tragedy Jerome could not get away from it. Whether because his mind was better brained, more discerning, or because from a long line of seafaring ancestors, he had inherited his share of sailor superstition which is actually distorted religion. He was struck through with awe over the correspondence here. Fragments of the book of Genesis passed through his mind.

He was about to drag her from the place by force if necessary when there came an interruption.

It was about time for Papa Gorilla's afternoon call and in the excitement of their discovery they had forgotten about it. Now in the height of the argument as to the violation of the forbidden tree, Linda facing the house saw the great brute bounding toward them through the thicket. He was followed by the deb who hitherto had shown himself coy and retiring.

"Look!" Linda cried sharply.

Despite his great bulk and the fact that he was bounding toward them the gorilla's approach was noiseless. Jerome spun about at the look of fright on Linda's face. He saw that something had altered the friendly and rather jolly relationship that up to now had been enjoyed.

Papa Gorilla was evidently in a state of acute excitement. He was emitting growls and clicks and cluckings as he sped along, and these now became audible. They saw that his face was contorted, and his prehensile mouth writhing. The huge brute exhibited every symptom of anger and also of fear. The deb began to chatter. She also was distressed.

As the formidable pair came close, Jerome realized his utter helplessness and complete futility. He was empty-handed, which made slight difference unless provided with a heavy firearm. He knew no word of command. For a moment it looked as if the big apes meant to hurl themselves on Linda and himself and tear them to pieces. Jerome knew instinctively what that reason was. The pair might not only be objects of scientific experiment to develop their intelligence but had been trained as caretakers of this part of the plantation.

There was nothing to do but wait what looked like a charge. Glancing at Linda, Jerome saw she was white as sea foam. But she did not shrink. He said under his breath:

stopped suddenly but continued to slash about with the vine, muttering and growling. At least this demonstration had a calming effect. The contortions of his face became less agonized and his close set eyes under their penthouse brows stopped their rolling. Several yards behind him the deb crouched down as if awaiting further orders.

Jerome began a steady patter of talk in the recitative voice he had already found grateful to the gorilla. He fell back on the rhyme of the Nancy Bell that by this time may have begun to sound familiar and therefore reassuring. Linda joined in her own soothing voice.

Papa Gorilla suddenly flung aside the liana as if with a gesture of relief that he no longer felt compelled to use it. One might have thought he had been working himself up to the necessary frenzy.

He straightened himself to his full height, clinched a fist that was appalling, inflated his tremendous chest, and began to beat upon it.

"It would be better to leave it entirely alone," Jerome said sternly.

"Steady, now. Don't let them see you're scared. Move slowly toward the house."

"Righto," she muttered.

The house was at a slight angle to the direction from which the gorillas were approaching. Jerome and Linda started to walk toward it. Papa Gorilla grabbed at a liana that hung from a mango tree. He shredded the tough creeper in his powerful hands so that it left a piece about five feet long. He flailed about with this like a man slashing round him with a whip. He reminded Jerome of a Zulu head boy in a safari about to discipline the lagging porters with a shambok or Boer whip.

"Wow!" he exclaimed to Linda, "if he starts to flog us with that thing we're done in."

She did not answer. Their course took them obliquely toward the excited gorillas and they did not swerve away from it. This advance seemed to confuse the big ape and to reassure him. Papa Gorilla

This great drum was what had terrified them the night of his first visit.

But it was not followed by the former bellowing. The change wrought was of the sort peculiar to the Simian species; an abrupt cessation from the action prompted by one idea. Perhaps in the sudden lack of the motive that had prompted it this became forgotten. Monkeys do not seem able to carry on a sustained line of conduct when distracted from its effort. It is as if their minds were suddenly derailed.

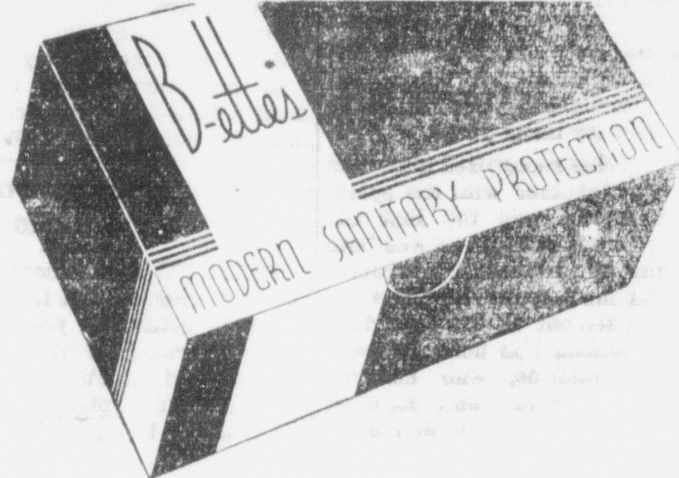

The thumpings died away, stopped, and the big ape's taut body relaxed. He crouched, looked blinking at Jerome and Linda, who continued to walk slowly along, patting their rhymes. Then as if ashamed of his loss of temper or excessive zeal he turned and bounded off into the jungle, followed by his female satellite.

Modern Freedom

FOR MODERN WOMEN

Sanitary Protection without Pads, Napkins or Belts

FOR today's women . . . busy, modern, throwing off ancient shackles . . . Bettes were created. Here is a method that ends the discomfort, the inconvenience and the embarrassment that heretofore has been an unavoidable part of this feminine problem. With Bettes there is no consciousness of wearing a sanitary protection at all! They are completely invisible in use . . . deodorant . . . and, though they safely and efficiently perform the purpose of ordinary napkins, Bettes are so tiny that a day's supply can be carried unobtrusively in a handbag. Never before have women known such comfort . . . such convenience . . . such daintiness . . . in a sanitary protection.

of Forests and Waters did then and there accept the suggestions of the authorized bodies in Washington, and did agree to revise and extend the said plan or report and submit it in the form of a formal project for the said repair and rehabilitation of the said Canal on the Federal funds then available;

And whereas, no further statement or report regarding the said project has been made to the officers of the Delaware Valley Protective Association, or to its many members and friends within and without the Delaware Valley, or to the recent L. W. D. of the W. P. A. in the Philadelphia District, or to any other group or groups of interested persons so far as is known;

And whereas, recent representatives of the L. W. D. or the W. P. Therefore, be it resolved, that we, the directors of the Delaware Valley Protective Association, in special meeting assembled, do herewith express our extreme dissatisfaction with the above situation; and do herewith declare our conviction that our inquiries regarding the said project should be fully and promptly answered; and do herewith insist, in the interests of the many interested residents of the Delaware Valley and of the State at large, that we have from the Department of Forests and Waters of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a report to the effect that the said project is being urgently submitted to the authorized bodies at Washington, before the passage of time shall render such submission tardy and futile;

And be it further resolved that we instruct our president or our secretary, or both, to communicate at once with the said Department of Forests and Waters of Pennsylvania toward the immediate securing of information regarding this project, and the assurance that it is being duly pressed as heretofore promised and understood;

And be it further resolved that we instruct our president or our secretary, or both, to submit this resolution to the press, for publication, in order that the public may have the information to which its interest and co-operation entitle it.

PREPARE FOR YOUR VOCATION—Hundreds of bright young men are graduating from high schools and colleges. In a few years some of them will be leaders in great industrial projects. PRINTING AND JOURNALISM are among America's greatest industries. To those whose talents and ambitions qualify them for entrance, the EMPIRE STATE SCHOOL OF PRINTING offers a comprehensive course in technique and informative subjects relating to the industry. The Empire State School of Printing is not a commercialized "trade school". It is an educational institution, founded and supported by State and National Newspaper Publishers' Associations for the advancement of the industry. Here knowledge is acquired and skills developed in the fundamentals of printing and journalism by teaching methods, which experience proves must supercede the old apprenticeship system of training. Baseball, Football, Basketball, Boxing, Bowling and Other Sporting Events Are Featured Daily For The Local Follower and Lover of Sport

READY TO STAGE BOUTS HERE; POSTPONED TWICE

Ten bouts are scheduled for tonight in the amateur boxing show to be held in the St. Ann's outdoor arena, Wood and Franklin streets. The bouts were scheduled twice before but on each occasion, rain thwarted the efforts to hold the affair.

Eight Bristol boys will vie for honors against glovers from the East Side, Mason, and West Side Club, of Philadelphia. The local leather-pushers are: "Chet" Castor, Francis Wilson, Harry Davis, Sammy Ross, Donato Sclarra, Vince Delia, Al Paris and Sammy Biocchia.

Of the lot, Al Paris has the best record, scoring two victories in matches with boys from the Quaker City. Sclarra has a victory and a defeat, Castor a defeat, and Delia a defeat. The remainder of the boys are all new-comers to the local amateur rank. Of the three, Wilson is the heavyweight, tipping the scales at 185 pounds.

There is a possibility that Johnny Racecagno may don the mitts again tonight. Racecagno was knocked out in the first round in his bout with Roosevelt Rowe in the last fight but last night announced that he is ready again and wants a return bout with the colored boy from the East Side club who has scored two knock-out wins here.

The reserved seats for the show have all been sold and the sale of the grand-stand seats will start at seven o'clock. The first bout will go on at 8.15 o'clock sharp.

HULMEVILLE VICTORS IN TILT WITH DOLINGTON

Airtight hurling by Howard Black gave the Hulmeville A. A. team its first victory of the five game play-off series with Dolington for the championship of the Delaware River League yesterday afternoon on the Dolington field. Dolington was victorious in Saturday's contest, making the series standing two to one in favor of the Cornhuskers.

Black was socked for eleven bingles in the tilt but these were kept widely scattered and the lanky pilot of the Hulmevilles was invincible throughout. He fanned ten batters, Stan Carlen with three hits and Warren Bilger with two doubles were the leading hitters of the winning aggregation.

A double by Mike Gagliardi followed by a clean single to center by Charlie Miller gave the Cornhuskers their only marker of the fray in the third frame.

"Pete" Devlin was the Hulmeville starting hurler. He left in the eighth after the Dolington outfit had made three consecutive hits for two runs. Wils Holland relieved him and finished the tilt.

METEOR MISSES HIM

BRIGGSDALE, Colo. — (INS) — To the hazards of hoeing beans, add the danger of whizzing meteors. Tom Everett, a farmhand, working in a bean field, heard a loud whizz, saw a cloud of dust and heard a thud. Several yards away he found a molten mass so hot that he had to let it cool before he could pick it up. It weighed one-half pound and was the shape of a turkey egg.

SAN BENITO, Tex. — (INS) — This section of the state will go baty, if W. H. Wood has his say. At a meeting here of chamber of commerce secretaries, Wood explained how the bats at his mountain cabin in Mexico keep down mosquitoes. He suggests establishing bat roosts in the Rio Grande valley to drive the insects out.

CUBANS WIN SECOND IN K. OF C. PLAY-OFFS

A ball game is never over until the last out is made. This adage was again proven yesterday afternoon on Leedom's field as the Cubans made it two straight in the play-off series of the Bristol Twilight League. The Casey held a 5-4 lead with two out in the ninth but the Cubans decked the score and then won out, 6-5, in the tenth.

In the ninth, Derry struck out and Dorsey rolled to Cooper and was thrown out. The fans started to leave as Hovatter curved two strikes on Gibson but the Cuban left-fielder beat out a hit to short. Len Darrah then sent a long double to center and Gibson touched all the bags to tie the score, 5-5. Spencer could do little so the team went into an extra inning.

The Knights could do nothing in their half of the frame. But for the Cubans, there is a different story. Braggs hit to short who threw out the runner but McDewitt dropped the ball. Davis hit to W. Dougherty who with an easy double-play ahead allowed the ball to roll between his legs, putting Braggs on third. Long tapped to McDewitt who tagged the runner on the base-line, holding Braggs on third. Alex Spencer counted Braggs with the winning run with a single to right.

The third game of the series will be played next Sunday.

PHILA. EAGLES CAPTURE VICTORY OVER SEEDMEN

Two runs in the tenth gave the Philadelphia Eagles a 7-5 overtime triumph over the Landreth Seed-Packers Saturday evening on Leedom's field before a large crowd. The Packers had rallied in the ninth to score three tallies and deadlock the count.

Morgan supplied the pinch-hitting blow by singling in the tenth. Thompson, the first hitter in the extra frame, was credited with a double after Leo Hibbs dropped his fly, spilling in a pool of water. Crawford also hit safely, sending Thompson to third. Burdall fled out, both runners holding their sacks. Weaver singled scoring Thompson. Morgan scored Crawford with a single past third base.

Sid Purcell again led the Landreth men with the willow, getting a triple and double in four trips to the plate. Danny Hines was the losing twirler with the victory going to Ira Burdall.

BRISTOL NET STARS WIN MORE HONORS

Three weeks ago in the finals of the Treton Municipal Doubles Tournament, Herbert Lawrence and Nelson Green, the two Bristol tennis aces, were defeated by Rednor and Levy of Trenton. Yesterday morning the two Bristol players got their revenge by defeating Rednor and Levy in the semi-finals of the doubles tournament held on the Alpha Club courts at Langhorne. The score was 6-1, 6-4.

In the afternoon Lawrence and Green met Quinn and Clark in the finals and defeated them by the score 5-7, 6-1, 6-4, thus winning the doubles championship of Lower Bucks County.

Hugh Quinn, who was a former captain of the St. Joseph's College varsity tennis team, and a member of the Philadelphia Rifle Club, proved to be too strong an opponent for the Bristol boys in the singles tournament. A week ago Quinn defeated Green in the semi-finals, 6-4, 7-5, 8-6. Last Saturday he won from Lawrence by the score 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Lawrence and Green have reached the semi-finals in the Burlington tournament in their respective brackets and if they should both win, they will compete against each other in the finals, for the third time this summer.

Senator Long Improves

Baton Rouge La., Sept. 9 — Earl Christenberry, secretary to Senator Huey P. Long, announced shortly after 6 a. m., central standard time, today, that the Louisiana Senator's condition had "improved noticeably in the last 15 minutes."

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 9 — With martial law prevailing throughout southern Louisiana during scenes of wildest confusion, United States Senator Huey P. Long tottered between life and death on a cot in Lady of the Lakes Sanitarium today. Surgeons and physicians said the Louisiana Senator was fighting the greatest and grimmest fight of his career.

Resting, now that the bullet from the would-be assassin's gun had been removed from his intestines and given added strength from the blood of his close personal and political friend, Lt. Gov. James A. Noe, Senator Long was given a good chance to recover.

A heavy array of armed bodyguards and state troopers stood on guard outside the Senator's room and the hospital, allowing no one but those especially authorized, to enter. At the bedside of the wounded Long sat his wife. She had been summoned hastily from New Orleans. Shortly before daylight, the following bulletin was issued from the hospital:

"Senator Long was wounded by one bullet which entered the upper right side, emerging from the back. The colon was punctured in two places. Condition fairly satisfactory."

Within an hour after Senator Long had been shot down on the floor of the House of Representatives, and his assailant, Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Jr., almost cut in two by machine-gun fire from Long's bodyguards, Baton Rouge and southern Louisiana resembled wartime territory. Martial law was declared shortly and national guardsmen aided by state troopers patrolled the capitol and all state buildings.

It was almost impossible to obtain coherent accounts of the shooting and events immediately following it but this much, however, seemed assured: The Louisiana Senator left the House of Representatives, still in session, as it passed on to the final discussions on 32 bills drawn up at his command. As he stepped into the hallway leading to the office of Governor O. K. Allen, a young man dressed simply in white linen, walked up to him, placed a revolver against his body and pulled the trigger. Murphy Rodan, the Senator's bodyguard, immediately attempted to wrest the revolver from the assassin's hand. He failed to get the gun, but did succeed in jamming the trigger. A second later, a machine-gun echoed through the halls of the capitol building as state police and bodyguards opened fire upon Weiss. Literally riddled with bullets the young doctor fell in a tangled and crimson heap. Dr. Weiss, who was 39 years old, was a son-in-law of Judge B. R. Pavy, of Opelousas, La. Judge Pavy, who has long been a bitter enemy of Senator Long, was believed to be the object of a special bill introduced at the present session of the State Legislature, designed, it is said, to remove Judge Pavy from office. This legislation reports stated, is believed to have led to the action taken last night by Dr. Weiss.

Dr. Weiss was survived by his wife and a three-months-old baby.

NEW LEXINGTON, O. — (INS) — The only persons not lamenting the recent flood in Central Ohio, which left approximately $1,000,000 damage in its wake, are the pharmacists. "Business is rushing," they say as demands for mosquito "scoot" and citronella oils continue to mount. The receding high water left a great abundance of mosquitoes.
